CREATURE ATLAS

Animal Fact Sheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Borneo Eared Frog

Polypedates otilophus

The Borneo Eared Frog is a striking tree frog native to the rainforests of Borneo, recognized for the prominent, ear-like projections on the sides of its head. This medium-sized amphibian displays a …

Quick facts

Classification: Amphibian
Family: Rhacophoridae
Habitat: Tropical rainforest canopies and forest edges near bodies of freshwater
Diet: Carnivore
Conservation status: Least Concern
Lifespan: 5-7 years
Weight: 10-20 grams
Scientific name: Polypedates otilophus

Did you know?

- Unlike most frogs, the Borneo Eared Frog's 'ear' structures are actually bony crests that help distinguish it from closely related species.
- The Borneo Eared Frog gets its name from the unique bony ridges that resemble ears, though they serve no hearing function. This species can leap rema…

What I learned

© Creature Atlas · www.creatureatlas.com · Free for classroom & personal use