CREATURE ATLAS

Animal Fact Sheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Reticulated Glass Frog

Hyalinobatrachium valerioi

The glass frog is translucent from below: through the skin of its belly you can see the heart beating, the liver, and the loops of the intestine. But the transparency is stranger than it looks, becau…

Quick facts

Classification: Amphibian
Family: Centrolenidae
Habitat: Humid lowland rainforest near streams
Diet: Carnivore
Conservation status: Least Concern
Lifespan: 5-10 years
Weight: 2-6 grams
Scientific name: Hyalinobatrachium valerioi

Did you know?

- Despite their fragile appearance, Reticulated Glass Frogs can leap impressive distances to escape threats or reach new perches.
- You can see its heart beating through the skin of its belly. When it sleeps, it packs almost all its red blood cells into its liver — which is mirror…

What I learned

© Creature Atlas · www.creatureatlas.com · Free for classroom & personal use