

Name: _____ Date: _____

Royal Albatross

Diomedea epomophora

The Royal Albatross is one of the world's largest seabirds, distinguished by its massive wingspan, white plumage, and black upper wing markings. Found predominantly in the Southern Ocean, these impre...

Quick facts

Classification: Bird

Family: Diomedidae

Habitat: Subantarctic islands and open Southern Ocean

Diet: Carnivore

Conservation status: Endangered

Lifespan: 40-60 years

Weight: 8-10 kg

Scientific name: Diomedea epomophora

Did you know?

- A Royal Albatross chick takes nearly a year to fledge, making it one of the slowest-growing seabird chicks in the world.
- Royal Albatrosses possess one of the largest wingspans of any living bird, reaching up to 3.5 meters. They can spend months at sea without touching l...

What I learned
