

Name: _____ Date: _____

Sarus Crane

Antigone antigone

The Sarus Crane is the world's tallest flying bird, known for its striking gray plumage, vibrant red head and upper neck, and impressive stature. These graceful birds are commonly found wading in wet...

Quick facts

Classification: Bird

Family: Gruidae

Habitat: Wetlands, marshes, and shallow lakes

Diet: Omnivore

Conservation status: Vulnerable

Lifespan: 15-20 years in the wild

Weight: 6-12 kg

Scientific name: Antigone antigone

Did you know?

- Despite their size and power, Sarus Crane populations are declining due to habitat loss, making them one of the most threatened crane species in the ...
- Sarus Cranes perform synchronized dances with their mates, strengthening their pair bonds. They are the tallest of all flying birds, sometimes reachi...

What I learned
