

Name: _____ Date: _____

Tomato Frog

Dyscophus antongilii

The Tomato Frog is a striking amphibian native to Madagascar, easily recognized by its vibrant red or orange coloration reminiscent of a ripe tomato. It inhabits humid lowland forests, swamps, and ar...

Quick facts

Classification: Amphibian

Family: Microhylidae

Habitat: Tropical lowland forests and freshwater swamps

Diet: Carnivore

Conservation status: Near Threatened

Lifespan: 6-8 years

Weight: 40-200 grams

Scientific name: Dyscophus antongilii

Did you know?

- Tomato Frogs can inflate their bodies to appear larger and more intimidating when threatened.
- The Tomato Frog gets its name from its bright, tomato-like coloration. Females are significantly larger and more brightly colored than males. When ha...

What I learned

.....

.....